

University of Exeter Workshop: Media and UK Elections
14 June 2021: 1:30-5.30pm (BST)
Programme

Welcome: 1.00-1.30pm

- Welcome and introduction to the data and data linkage (Dan Stevens, University of Exeter)

Session 1: 1.30-3.15pm

- Does the Media Drive Support for Radical-Right Parties, and Through Which Mechanisms? The Case of UKIP and the Brexit Party
Speakers: Daniel Devine, University of Oxford and Stuart Turnbull-Dugarte, University of Southampton
- Where and for Whom does Immigration Coverage Matter?
Speakers: Theresa Gessler, University of Zurich
- Windrush, Hostile Environment, and Sadiq Khan: Media Mobilization and Demobilization of Co-ethnic Voting and Anti-Co-ethnic Voting in the British 2015, 2017, and 2019 General Elections
Speakers: Kimberly Shella, South Illinois University, Carbondale
- Does Media Exposure to Political Actors with Shared Gender or Ethnicity Group Mobilise Group Members?
Speakers: Amanda Haraldsson, European University Institute

Discussant: Antal Wozniak, University of Liverpool: A.Wozniak@liverpool.ac.uk

3.15-3.30pm Break

Session 2: 3.30-5.15pm

- Reconsidering Reinforcement: Does Media Issue Coverage Reinforce Citizens' Pre-existing Political Attitudes?
Speakers: Daniel Ziebarth, George Washington University
- Are Male Leaders More 'Robust' to Negative Media Coverage? The Impact of Party Leader Sex on Media Coverage and Subsequent Voter Evaluations in Recent UK Elections
Speakers: Jessica Smith, University of Southampton)
- Coverage, Candidate Characteristics and Competitive Constituencies: Analysis of Recent British General Elections
Speakers: Hannah Bunting, University of Southampton
- Candidate Experience and the "Gender Penalty"
Speakers: Kiran Arabaghatta Basavaraj, University of Exeter, Patrick English, University of Exeter, Susan Banducci, University of Exeter

Discussant: Maarja Luhiste (Newcastle University: maarja.luhiste@ncl.ac.uk)

5.15pm: Closing Comments

- Closing comments, Susan Banducci, University of Exeter
